Khawaja involved at 'all 4 corners', Crown argues

TRIAL The Ottawa man accused of terrorist activity was "fully involved" in a 2004 bomb plot targeting several locations in the U.K., the federal prosecutor said in closing arguments yesterday.

"The evidence nails down (Momin) Khawaja's involvement at all four corners," David McKercher said yesterday.

"By coming up with ideas, he facilitated the actions of the group by giving them options to think about, whether they used them or not," he said.

Throughout the trial, the Crown has argued that Khawaja, a 29-year-old computer software operator for the Department of Foreign Affairs, was key to a foiled fertilizer bomb attack plot. Court has heard that in March 2004 the RCMP raided Khawaja's Orleans home and found assault rifles, ammunition and $10,000.

"The manufacturing and storing equipment in his house is particularly pertinent," McKercher said. "He actually facilitated it."

Khawaja is charged under Canada's Anti-Terrorism Act. Although one of nine men arrested, he was the only one arrested in Canada.

May's way cleared for TV debate

Tories, NDP cave to outcry

There was a scramble to find the right television channel and then screaming took over the room.

"Yes! Yes!" Green Leader Elizabeth May shouted yesterday as she got the news Prime Minister Stephen Harper would not boycott the televised national leaders' debates if May were invited, after New Democratic Leader Jack Layton reversed his opposition to her participation.

A few hours later, after hearing the broadcast consortium of CBC, Radio-Canada, CTV, Global and TVA would invite her to the podium, she shared her delight on television.

"I think what we're seeing is people are disenchanted with old-style politics," she said. "They are sick of the partisanship that exceeds sense, the fact that people will do anything to convince the voter that they're the only party with good ideas."

Layton said he found "the whole issue about debating about the debate" a distraction and he will debate May as long as Harper shows up.

Then Harper also changed his stance.

"We will not boycott the debate if the NDP wants her in," Harper's spokesman Kory Teneycke said.

The consortium that organizes the debates — to be broadcast Oct. 1 and 2 — had said Monday it would not invite May to participate because three of the four major federal party leaders had threatened to boycott if she were there.

Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion had argued for May's inclusion, but had said he would not participate if Harper were to drop out.

Canadians voiced outrage over the snub in thousands of comments posted to media websites and Facebook walls for several leaders and parties.

Plea bargain in city daycare case angers parents

CHARGES Parents left an Ottawa courthouse in anguish yesterday after a charge of forcible confinement was dropped in a plea bargain with an Orleans child-care provider who operated a day care without a licence. During sentencing, the court heard 11 children were confined to the basement of Helene Ranger's home when she was arrested last October. A statement of fact read by Justice Ann Alder said four children under the age two were found in playpens in the furnace room, in total darkness. "As a mother, the guilt that you have will never go away. You ask yourself, how did I not see the signs?" said one woman, who cannot be named to protect the identity of her child.

Crown counsel said confinement charges were dropped after Ranger, 50, agreed to plead guilty to operating a day care without a licence and obstructing police. She was sentenced yesterday to three years probation and a $5,000 fine. Also, she cannot operate or work in child care for three years.

Parents who packed the hearing were angry after the judge's sentencing.

"I think it's a walk in the park," the mother told reporters. "My child was put in jail — she was locked in a basement."

Some parents are calling for tougher child-care regulations and said they will consider pursuing civil action.

Week-long rash of bank robberies linked

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Following an investigation, Ottawa police say they've linked four recent bank robberies in the city to the same suspect.

Police said they're eyeing the same man as responsible for the robberies of three different TD Canada Trust bank branches and one Royal Bank in the past week.

Although there were slight differences in witnesses' descriptions of the man, investigators say there is "a very obvious resemblance" shared by the suspects captured in security camera images at all four banks, according to Ottawa Police Const. J.P. Vincelette.

Police think the man seen above in three different surveillance images is responsible for recent Ottawa-area bank heists.

Vincelette said robbery streaks are uncommon, but that it would be speculation to say whether police think the man will strike again.

"We want to find out who he is and have him arrested," Vincelette said.

On Monday at 1:30 p.m., two men robbed the TD Canada Trust bank on Pretoria Avenue. One of the suspects lifted his shirt to show the teller a handgun tucked into his jeans.

Later that day, a man robbed the TD Canada Trust on Merivale Road.

Last Friday a man passed a note demanding cash to a Royal Bank teller at 1535 Bank Street and on Sept. 3, a man robbed the TD Bank on Richmond Road, again by passing a note demanding cash.

There were no injuries in any of these robberies.

The suspect in all incidents is described as black, between 17 and 22 years old with a thin build, between 5'8" and 6' tall and between 140 and 155 pounds. He has short black hair.

Anyone with information on this case should call the robbery unit at 613-236-1222 ext. 5447, or Crime Stoppers at 613-233-8477.

Two more fired in sewage spill mess

TIM WIECLAWSKI

Two more city managers have been fired and one has been suspended without pay for 20 days in connection to the billion-litres spill of raw sewage into the Ottawa River in August 2006 that went unreported for nearly two years.

The firings, announced yesterday, brings to three the number of people who have lost their jobs since the spill became public last March. Mayor Larry O'Brien called the actions the right step and said he's comfortable with city manager Kent Kirkpatrick's decision.

This summer, the Ministry of the Environment laid charges against the city in connection with the spill. The city could be charged up to $6 million in fines for each of the 12 days that a malfunctioning regulator gate was left jammed open, releasing raw sewage into the river.

All three levels of government have since launched investigations and have

Man attacked outside burger joint

ASSAULT A man attacked and robbed a victim outside of a fast food restaurant in Vanier early yesterday morning.

Police said a suspect approached and assaulted a man in the Burger King parking lot at 199 Montreal Road at around 12:30 a.m.

"He was punched in the face, but the injuries weren't serious," said Ottawa Police Const. J.P. Vincelette.

The suspect stole the man's money and ran away behind some buildings towards Cody Street. No weapon was seen during the assault.

The victim, a 22-year-old man, was not seriously hurt and the investigation is ongoing, Vincelette said.

The suspect is described as a black male, between 21 and 25 years old, six-foot-one with a medium build, black hair and a goatee. He was wearing a black T-shirt with white writing, black pants and a black bandana on his head at the time of the incident.

City keeps weekly trash collection

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

When Ottawa's organics green bin program begins next September, other household trash will continue to be collected every week, year round.

Yesterday, city council rejected a staff recommendation to reduce trash collection frequency to bi-weekly six months after the organics program launches in a bid to save $1 million annually until 2012. Instead, organics collection will be the service that becomes bi-weekly in the winter.

College ward Councillor Rick Chiarelli said weekly garbage collection is a core municipal service that should not be reduced unless residents ask for it.

"Let them come to us and tell us that they are in the position that they want weekly garbage pick-up stopped," he said.

Though not a supporter of the organics program, Knoxdale-Merivale Coun. Gord Hunter criticized council's decision for producing the opposite effect of what they had intended.

"We have just voted for something that says less collection of the organics than the residuals," said Hunter.

"How did we manage to screw it up that much, by just a few simple votes?"

But contractual obligations with the waste management companies meant trash collection either had to be reduced after six months, or not until after the current deal expires in June 2012.

City solid waste manager, Albert Shamess, said a number of municipalities follow the same pattern for collection because there isn't as much organics disposal in the winter and the materials degrade more slowly in cold weather.

"How did we manage to screw it up that much?"

New pets on buses push fails

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

A final push to allow pets to ride on Ottawa public transit fell through yesterday.

Councillor Alex Cullen's motion to have staff develop a policy for pets on buses was rejected by a vote of 14-8.

"All that is being asked for here is that a report come back to us," said Cullen. "That's what this report would do. Look at the best practices, what does work, and come back to us in February."

But Mayor Larry O'Brien

"The drivers are going to be very happy and I'm sure riders are going to be very happy as well."

André Cornellier

said he'd be voting against the motion "much to my chagrin and much to the chagrin of my dog Remi."

ATU 279 President André Cornellier said he was pleased to see the issue finally put to rest.

He said the bylaws regarding pets on transit in other cities were passed decades ago, before many of the currently labour and health laws were enacted.

"The drivers are going to be very happy and I'm sure riders are going to be very happy as well," he said. "When you think about priority seating, about strollers and seniors and disabled people coming on, they should have the priority — not animals."

A group had proposed a six-month pilot program to allow small, crated animals on buses and O-Trains with their owners.

Small fire causes big delays

TRAFFIC A small electrical fire in the downtown core, along a major bus artery, caused a big traffic jam during rush hour yesterday morning.

Traffic was backed up throughout the downtown area, from the University of Ottawa to Westboro, as fire crews blocked Albert St. between Bank and Kent streets.

Transformers blew in the electrical room of a 16-storey building at 255 Albert St. at 8:30 a.m., filling the area with smoke. The fire department automatically sent out enough equipment for a second-alarm fire, because of the occupancy load of a high-rise, said Ottawa Fire Chief Jim Corrigan.

Fifteen fire trucks and 39 firefighters attended, in addition to police officers, paramedics and Ottawa Hydro and Enbridge workers. There was a loss of power in parts of the building and in another building on Sparks Street.

Corrigan said a breaker or a large fuse had blown in the hydro vault in the first parking level.

"We didn't have to extinguish it, but it created a lot of smoke concentrated in parking levels 1 and 2," said Corrigan.

Mechanical fans were used to ventilate the building and workers were evacuated.

Harper sets Afghan deadline

Canadian troops will be out of troubled region by 2011, PM says

Canada will withdraw its troops from Afghanistan — not just Kandahar — by 2011, even though it's likely the deadly insurgency will still be raging, Prime Minister Stephen Harper says.

Harper yesterday went beyond the resolution that Parliament approved just this spring that called for Canada's 2,500 troops to be out of Kandahar in three years and instead predicted most troops would be out of the country by the deadline.

"At that point, the mission as we've known it, we intend to end it. I think you have to put an end date on these things," he told reporters yesterday.

By that time, Canadians and even the Armed Forces will have lost their appetite for the dangerous mission that has so far

"At that point, the mission as we've known it, we intend to end it. I think you have to put an end date on these things."

Stephen Harper

claimed the lives of 97 soldiers and diplomat Glyn Berry, he said.

"I really don't think there'll be much appetite among Canadians and I don't even think among the Armed Forces themselves — although they probably wouldn't say so — (there's) much appetite to see rotations continuing the way they've been after six years," he said.

And he added a blunt message to the Afghan government, saying it should be prepared to assume responsibility for its security when Canada leaves.

"A sovereign government has to be able to be primarily responsible for the day-to-day security of the country. That's what we're trying to do through training programs. I think we are making some progress," Harper said.

Dion prepared to dish out more for food safety

PROMISES Linking the current food safety crisis to the water tragedy in Walkerton, Ont., eight years ago, Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion promised to spend $50 million to improve federal food inspections.

The Liberals have said the Harper government's handling of food safety may have contributed to the listeriosis outbreak that has killed 15 people across Canada — just as reduced regulatory spending under former Ontario premier Mike Harris played a role in the E. coli water tragedy that cost seven lives in Walkerton in

"A government cannot cut corners when it comes time to protecting the health and safety of Canadians for the sake of so-called efficiencies," Dion said.

He told high school students in Walkerton the $50 million would allow the government to hire 100 more Canadian Food Inspection Agency inspectors, an 8 per cent increase in those "on the ground."

"There is nothing more at the core of what the government should do than food safety," Dion said.

Retrial sought in British air explosives plot

BRITAIN Prosecutors said yesterday they would seek a retrial for seven British men accused of creating a deadly plot to smuggle liquid explosives onto transatlantic flights.

A jury was unable to agree to convict the seven on the most serious of the charges after a five-month trial that ended Monday. After 56 hours of deliberation, three of the men were found guilty of a lesser charge. A verdict could not be reached for four others, and an eighth man was acquitted.

A court hearing will be held to decide whether a retrial should be held.

Weak economy hurts TIFF sales

Film sales at the Toronto International Film Festival are at a slow start this year compared to prior years, reflecting the weakness in the global economy and a glut of independent movies on the market, veteran industry leaders say.

"There is usually a frenzy in the first weekend that's not happening," said Mark Gill, chief executive of the Film Department.

The festival is North America's most important clearing house for distributors and producers looking to make sales to international markets.

That source of money has quickly dried up in the global credit crunch that started in the United States. However, thousands of pre-financed independent films are already in the pipeline.

RIM's new flip BlackBerry has hit potential: Analysts

PEARL Research In Motion appears to have dialed up a mainstream hit with the new flip version of its popular BlackBerry Pearl by tapping into cellphone users' love affair with flip mobiles, analysts say.

Also, analysts expect the new Pearl will be relatively affordable right from its launch, which, combined with its shape, will make it RIM's first truly mass market BlackBerry.

With this device, RIM hopes to diversify its customer base beyond its mainstay of executives and professionals.

White Sox pound Halladay to cool off hot Blue Jays

White Sox 6 Blue Jays 5

A.J. Pierzynski knocked in three runs as Chicago nearly wasted a five-run lead but clipped Toronto, 6-5 last night.

Starter Mark Buehrle (13-11) got the win by scattering seven hits and a run over 7½ innings, fanning six with two walks.

Alex Rios hit a two-run homer for the Blue Jays, whose 10-game-win streak came to an end. Marco Scutaro, Jose Bautista and Lyle Overbay each drove in a run as Toronto's comeback fell short.

Jays ace Roy Halladay (18-10) had an unusually poor outing, allowing nine hits and five runs over six full frames. He struck out eight and walked one but lost for the first time since August 9.

So much so, in fact, that the reigning world champion used it as the principal factor in his decision to retire from amateur competition yesterday, 18 months from the Vancouver Olympics.

"That (Vancouver) was part of the battle that was

"The only thing stopping me (from retiring) was Vancouver, and that's why I gave myself the buffer of this summer (to make the decision), and I came to the conclusion that Vancouver shouldn't be the motivating factor, that I should be true to myself."

Teen use

Teens are using technology all the time, everywhere. Almost 90 per cent of 12- to 17-year-olds report using the Internet, with half of them using it daily.

Parents should turn to tech-savvy kids

TechNow

Paul Brent

technow@ctv.ca

The kids are back at school and the laptops, cellphones, iPods, MSN, text messaging and every other form of technology are all getting a real workout from the younger generation.

A feeling for just how important technology is to young people comes via a survey done by a group of high school students in Ottawa. Under the guidance of teacher Robin McAteer at Sir Robert Borden High School, students devised, executed and tallied a survey of their peers.

Here are some survey highlights:

- Seventy-three per cent of teens own their own computer; 63 per cent own a cellphone; 41 per cent a web cam; 86 per cent an MP3 player.

- On the Internet, the top five daily activities — and they are done in almost equal amounts — are: e-mail, instant messaging, music, social networking sites and work.

- On average, kids spend close to three hours a day on the Internet.

- Eighty per cent of them use social networking sites and share a lot of personal information but they still feel safe; 37 per cent of them have 200 or more friends on their social networking site.

- Most teens feel "pretty safe" on the Internet and see it as a social, friendly, entertaining place to go.

You can check out the full report at cyberbully.pbwiki.com.

McAteer says young people live their lives on the Internet and their parents, for the most part, work on the Internet. Yet there is no doubt, she adds, that there is a digital gap between generations: 68 per cent of surveyed teens said they never or seldom talk to parents about the Internet.

Her advice is to get involved and the best way to do that is to admit to your kids that you are not the savviest person online, and that they teach you about what they do.

You might be amazed at how much your kids want to be your guide to the Internet. It may be a time when technology opens up a whole new real-life conversation between you and your children.

KITCHENAID

Customize kids' homework space

Create a stimulating or calming homework area to match your child's needs

ArrestingDesign

Jeffrey Fisher & Tammy Schnurr

busted@arrestingdesign.com

How do you improve your child's homework habits?

Why, pay close attention to the design of their homework space, of course. We're the first to admit that there may be other factors, but we (predictably) think that a well-appointed homework space can help keep the school year on track.

What is important to consider above all else is — of course — your child. In what kind of environment are they likely to work best? Some children work well in a quiet place in their bedrooms; others are distracted by the stuff in their bedrooms and do better at the kitchen table or a place that is close to parental or adult supervision.

Your child may work best in a place that feels calming and soothing — choose a paint colour that is quiet and calming such as sage green, ivory, desert tan or a similar muted tone. Other children are energized by brighter colours, but just be sure the shade you pick is not too stimulating.

And do not underestimate the importance of working at a desk. Homework done while sprawled across the sofa is not usually as productive, no matter what your children may tell you.

Make sure the desk is large enough to lay out projects, and make sure there are materials necessary for completing projects such as pencils, pens, coloured markers, and other items appropriate to the child's age. Also include a calendar to keep track of long term projects, and be prepared to discuss priorities and scheduling if your child has several work assignments to tackle. Have your child keep the area organized and tidy, because nothing is as distracting as clutter.

Your child may decorate his or her homework centre with pictures, paintings,

"You'll need bright task lighting aimed at the page on the table, and fresh air is imperative."

Jeffrey Fisher and Tammy Schurr

postcards or inspirational posters — anything that will personalize the space and make it feel more welcoming. If it is a common space, include these on a cork memo board that you can also store away when homework is completed. Just don't go overboard with items that are much more interesting than the homework!

Lighting and ventilation are also important. You'll need bright task lighting aimed at the page on the table, and fresh air is imperative.

If the child works at a kitchen table, ensure the chair is at the right height for work; too high or low will result in lots of shifting and fidgeting.

A few important hints about timing — establish a regular time to do homework — before supper, before they get too tired, perhaps a half-hour after they arrive home from school and have a snack.

Homework success depends on many different factors, but the design of a homework space can work wonders!

You want to create a feel-good environment that is well planned and stocked.

Tammy Schnurr and Jeffrey Fisher are hosts of Arresting Design on W Network.

This is the type of homework setup that you want to avoid. Kids need to have a chair that's the right height for work — too high or too low will result in lots of shifting and fidgeting.

Unclutter that school stuff

OrganizedZone

Brenda Borenstein

metro@organizedzone.com

By now, the commotion of back-to-school time has hopefully calmed down a bit, and both students and parents are settling into familiar routines. And thank goodness for those routines, because having a system down pat can definitely reduce your stress levels.

The first thing to do is unearth any stashes of school-related supplies that may be lurking in drawers or cupboards around the house.

Students are usually so excited to start their summer break that they don't take the time to sort out all their school stuff — and it ends up dumped in a closet or box somewhere.

A few years of this, and you not only have a sizeable accumulation of clutter, but you also end up spending money to duplicate (or triplicate) the same supplies.

So before the pressure of homework, tests and projects hits full intensity, take a few minutes with your favourite little scholars to uncover any such stashes and sort out their contents. The next time the kids are wandering the house in search of markers, binder paper or the missing pieces of a geometry set, you'll know whether a shopping trip is actually required.

Brenda Borenstein is your professional organizing guru. Her column appears every second Thursday. Visit organizedzone.com.

Tips to keep the school year on the rails:

- Make multiple copies of class schedules: one for home, one for the locker and one for a binder.
- Have two full sets of supplies, one for home and one for school. Must haves include a hole puncher, eraser, pencil sharpener, notebook and pencil.
- Create a buddy system for homework, and mark contact information on each copy of the class schedule.
- Zone a space specifically for homework and ensure that it's conducive to studying.
- Manage and balance time — less on Facebook, surfing the web and chatting on the phone.
- Go to bed earlier and wake up earlier.
- Clean, defragment and debug computers for optimum use.

You know it's fall when the leaves begin to change colour and big baskets of crisp apples are abundant.

Apples are a crop with a long history and are grown in many countries. It is the hardiest and most widely cultivated of all tree fruits, making them available year-round. As with all produce, try to buy local varieties in season. You will be rewarded with different flavours, textures and unequalled freshness.

Apples are one of the most popular and best fruits for out-of-hand eating — on average, Canadians eat 86 apples per year, nowhere near an apple a day.

served warm; however they can be made ahead. A quick reheat in the microwave will warm them up. Makes 6 servings.

INGREDIENTS:

Pudding:

- 1/4 cup (60 mL) canola oil + greasing cups
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) dark brown sugar

- 2 tbsp (30 mL) molasses
- 1 egg
- 1-1/2 cups (375 mL) grated, peeled apple (about 2 medium)
- 1 cup (250 mL) all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp (5 mL) ground ginger
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) baking soda
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) cinnamon

- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) salt
- 2 tbsp (30 mL) minced candied ginger (2 slices)

Lemon sauce:

- 1/2 cup (125 mL) sugar
- 2 tbsp (30 mL) cornstarch
- 1-1/4 cups (300 mL) milk
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) butter
- 1 lemon, finely grated peel and juice
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) vanilla

countless kinds

• There are countless varieties of apples, harvested from August through to November. Match the variety's cooking qualities with your purpose. Firm apples that keep their shape are good for pies. Apples that cook down easily are ideal for applesauce.

METHOD:

Brush 6 - 3/4-cup (175 mL) ramekins or custard cups with oil.

Combine 1/4 cup (60 mL) oil, brown sugar, molasses and egg until well blended. Stir in apple.

In large bowl, stir together flour, ginger, baking soda, cinnamon and salt. Stir in candied ginger. Stir liquid mixture into dry mixture until evenly combined; spoon batter evenly into ramekins or cups.

Arrange ramekins in a circle in microwave oven. Microwave uncovered at High for 3 to 5 minutes or until cake tester inserted in centre comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes. To serve, turn out onto individual plates and serve with warm Lemon Sauce.

For the sauce, in a 4-cup (1 L) glass measure, whisk sugar and cornstarch together. Whisk in milk until smooth. Microwave, uncovered at High for 3 to 5 minutes or until mixture comes to a boil and thickens. Whisk at least once during cooking. Stir in butter until melted, then lemon juice, peel and vanilla. Makes about 1-1/2 cups (375 mL).

Tips:

- Pick of the Crop: Look for firm apples, free of wrinkles and bruises. Remove any fruit that are overripe or have soft spots as they give off ethylene gas causing nearby apples to ripen too quickly and spoil. Trim and use for pies or applesauce.
- Good for you: Apples are a good source of dietary fibre (be sure to eat the skin) and vitamin C. Wash well before eating.

Beautiful eats by the beach

Shutters on the Beach in Santa Monica, Calif., is an iconic, luxury seaside resort that is often frequented by the Hollywood elite. In her new cookbook, The Summertime Anytime Cookbook: Recipes from Shutters on the Beach (Clarkson Potter), co-owner Dana Slatkin uses her years of experience to bring secrets from the famed hotel into every home. Metro got a hold of this "meaty" recipe:

Shutters Vegetarian Burger

Many restaurants appease their vegetarian guests by slapping a frozen vegetable patty on the grill and serving it up burger-style. Not at our boardwalk café. This burger deserves an extra-large whole grain or sprouted-wheat bun.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1/4 cup barbecue sauce
- 2 tbsp soy sauce
- 1 tbsp of hoisin sauce
- 1 tbsp molasses
- 1 (15-ounce) can black beans, drained
- 2 cups cooked brown rice
- 1 tbsp oat bran or wheat germ
- 2 tbsp finely chopped onions
- 1 tbsp minced garlic
- 2 tbsp finely chopped cooked beets (fresh or canned)
- 1 tsp minced jalapeno pepper, seeded
- 2 tsp extra-virgin olive oil, plus additional for cooking
- 1/2 tsp ground cumin
- 1/2 tsp Chile powder
- Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper
- 1 large egg white, beaten
- 6 slices of Monterey jack or sharp Cheddar cheese

METHOD:

In a small container, stir together the barbecue sauce, soy sauce, hoisin sauce, and molasses.

In a large bowl, mash the beans with a fork. Stir in 3 tablespoons of the barbecue sauce mixture along with the rice, oat bran, onion, garlic, beets, pepper, oil, cumin, and Chile powder. Season to taste with salt and pepper before adding the egg white. Form into 6 patties, each about an inch thick. Brush the burgers with the remaining barbecue sauce mixture.

Heat a heavy skillet over medium-high heat and add a thin film of oil. Cook the patties until they are well charred on each side, about 4 minutes per side, being careful when flipping them as they fall apart easily.

Top them with the cheese and cook until the cheese is melted, about 2 minutes.

Transfer the burgers to serving plates.

Strutting her way to fame

Q&A with recent Walk of Fame inductee Daria Werbowy

Supermodel Daria Werbowy, 24, was inducted into Canada's Walk of Fame last week.

Werbowy, whose name means "willow tree" in Ukrainian, immigrated to Canada with her family from Poland in the mid-1980s.

Her modelling career started at the age of 14, when a schoolmate's mom who operated a talent agency in Toronto saw promise in the lanky five-foot-11 teenager with braces.

Now represented by Elmer Olsen Models in Toronto and IMG in New York, Forbes magazine counts Werbowy among the top 10 highest-earning models in the world. Her major contracts this year include Dior, H&M, David Yurman, Jean Paul Gaultier and Lancôme.

Q Let's talk about modelling. A lot of magazines have hailed the return of the original supermodels — you know, Linda, Christy, Kate. What do you say to the commentators who claim today's models lack the personality of their predecessors?

A What's happened now is girls aren't being given the time to develop and to grow and to become women and develop their personalities. The turnaround is just much quicker.

And with the celebrity impact, models aren't the stars they used to be, because celebrities are fashion icons as well now.

Q Forbes ranked you ninth on its list of the world's highest-paid models. What's been your biggest purchase?

A My apartment. Home is your sanctuary.

Q What about in the not-practical, just-gotta-have-it department?

A The older I get, the less I need. I wear the same jean shorts for the whole week. I'm not running to the store to get the latest bag.

Q You've been a hugely successful model. You hold the record for opening the most runway shows in your first season. If you had to do it again, what would you do differently?

A I would've taken things a little more slowly and made a little bit more time for myself. I think one of the secrets to modelling is the less you care and the more you're yourself, the more successful you are.

And maybe I would've started taking three months off a lot earlier in my career. It's the best kind of therapy for anything. You come back feeling, 'I really don't care any more — I f---in' sailed across the Atlantic!' TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

ruffles

Ruffle it up this season with blouses and dresses. Ultra-feminine frills are back and they are on everything — bags, shoes and underwear. Try these popular looks the next time you're out shopping and keep this tip in mind: smaller-chested women should wear ruffles that are concentrated around the chest as it accentuates the bosom, making it look fuller; and larger-chested women should wear ruffles along the collar and bottom hemline to draw the attention away from your bosom, making the outfit and look balanced.

Hockey star fashions Hollywood gig

FILM Do real men wear Prada?

New Line Cinema will presumably answer that question in a romantic comedy about professional hockey player Sean Avery's experiences as an intern at the fashion bible Vogue.

Avery, who considers himself something of a fashion jock, spent the summer at Vogue, where, among other duties, he served as guest editor of MensVogue.com.

A member of the NHL's New York Rangers at the time of the internship, he has since signed with the Dallas Stars. He told the Hollywood Reporter that he's always been a fashionista. "I was always trying to be the best-dressed kid in school," he said.

As an instigator and fighter who piles up penalty minutes, he said he took some ribbing for his Vogue stint, but has learned not to worry about the opinions of others.

"I think it's great to be into something that you care about," he said. "But I'm still an athlete who likes to beat the crap out of people."

Tams beats Nova Scotia's MacDonald for Idol crown

BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Canada

When Theo Tams tried out for Canadian Idol, he was a nervous, armpit-soaked reality television show hopeful. Today he has a record deal, a national fan base and a shortcut to stardom.

Tams, a 23-year-old University of Lethbridge student from Lethbridge, Alta., could not hold back tears when he learned he beat Port Hood, N.S. carpenter Mitch MacDonald, 22 for the Idol title in the show's sixth season.

The victory was an upset for MacDonald who never placed in the bottom two or three during the show and would have been the first Atlantic Canadian to win the competition.

On Monday night, the guys sang three songs—one of their choice, one of the judge's choice and the single they would release if they were victorious.

The finalists returned last night, delivering reflective departing performances demonstrating their individual musical styles.

On the live finale, host Ben Mulroney returned with the show's judges Farley Flex, Jake Gold, Sass Jordan and Zack Werner in a two-hour retrospective ances and celebrity appearances, punctuated by R&B diva Mariah Carey.

The show's top ten finalists opened with a medley highlighting each contestant, the first of the night's three group performances. After looking back at the season's highs and lows, British Columbia band

Hedley, fronted by second season Idol contestant Jacob Hoggard, took to the stage to perform.

New to the program this season was the involvement of Toronto songstress Jilly Black as a mentor. She returned to exercise her vocal pipes, followed by a smooth, soulful performance by American singer/songwriter John Legend, who advised the final two in New York prior to their final performances.

Likely the most anticipated performance of the night was the Canadian television debut of Grammy Award winner Mariah Carey. Donning a black se-

Kardinal Offishall

Album: Not 4 Sale
Label: Kon Live/Universal
Rating: ●●●●●

BY TORONTONI-ANS have come to expect a lot from Kardinal Offishall — since his debut in 1997 he's consistently released solid, socially conscious rap. On his fourth album Kardi sticks to what he does best — creating witty, thought-provoking rhymes and dance-ready beats. Bolstered by his relationship with Akon's record label, the Canuck wordsmith has loaded this disc with some of urban music's biggest names. Estelle, T-Pain and Akon all make appearances here. Bryan Borzykowski

COMBINING SMART INDIE rock with alt-country grit, this Austin, Tex., act caught a lot of buzz last year with The Stage Names.

The Stand Ins, however, contains less steel guitar and more indie ambition, which may leave some wondering what this band really is (Stage Names or Stand-Ins). Okkervil's true identity lies in the visions of Michael Sheff, a brilliant craftsman with an off-kilter voice and a remarkable ability to bring dime-novel characters to life through song.

Chad VanGalen

Album: Soft Airplane
Label: Flemish Eye
Rating: ●●●●●

SINCE VAN-GALEN released his 2005 debut people haven't stopped talking about this Calgary wunderkind. But while the singer-songwriter's first two CDs were good, he hasn't released his masterpiece yet. This isn't it, but the record is easily VanGalen's best to date. He's finally abandoned the bizarre tracks that made his first two releases uneven, meaning this disc is all fantastic indie pop. But like his last efforts he doesn't shy away from odd noises and complex arrangements.

Doc exhibits museum fix

CRYSTAL CLEAR: The rest of the country probably regards the subject with indifference, but the new addition to Toronto's Royal Ontario Museum was intermittently a lightning rod for concern and outrage during the six years it took to build, and tonight the CBC takes us along for a look back, with the debut of The Museum, a two-part documentary made with remarkable access to the backstage intrigues behind the whole drama.

There are two men at the heart of the story director Kenton Vaughan tells, and only one of them is "star-architect" Daniel Libeskind, the author of the Michael A. Lee-Chin crystal, an audacious and attention-grabbing explosion of angles that erupts from the side of the stately old ROM building like a sci-fi movie set. The other is museum director William Thorsell, the onetime editor-in-chief of the Globe & Mail, and the motivating force behind the Crystal.

The first hour of The Museum (the second half will air next Thursday) rewinds

rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

The Museum, tonight on CBC, follows the addition made to the Royal Ontario Museum.

from the splashy opening of the new Crystal back to the turn of the millennium, when the ROM was a mostly moribund cultural institution, beloved but unvisited, full of tatty exhibits left over from the theme-park era of museum design.

Thorsell, the first ROM director without a museum background, is called in to revive the place, and he tells the trustees that the first and best option is a wild, attention-grabbing piece of architecture like Frank Gehry's Bilbao Guggenheim — conventional wisdom that was overwhelming Toronto, as almost every one of the ROM's institutional peers was demanding and getting a splashy renovation or redesign.

In front of Vaughan's cameras, the two men form a mutual admiration society, though Thorsell seems to do most of the work, though Thorsell does nothing to dispel the idea — suggested by the CBC doc and most other coverage of the Crystal's birth — that the building is really his testament, his taste and worldview made concrete (and steel and aluminum but ultimately very little of the glass Torontonians were initially led to expect from early models.) Their enthusiasm for the project sustains them through the crises they'd encounter over the years, from the discovery that the initial plan contained insufficient steel to hold itself up, to the public outcry that scuttled the condo project that Thorsell was relying on to cover funding shortfalls.

Vaughan has said he tried to keep an objective tone, so your reaction to The Museum will likely hinge on how you feel about Libeskind's building, which hasn't attracted near the numbers the ROM was relying on since opening last year. The museum's staff certainly seems less than enthusiastic, complaining frequently about the unworkable space, and Thorsell's disregard of their counsel on the effects of light on delicate artifacts. At times, the two men come across like caricatures of aesthetes, gushing over visual sensations, complimenting each other on their clothes and generally suggesting a skit that might have been performed by Dana Carvey and Mike Meyers in their distant prime.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

Liv struggles with breakup

RELATIONSHIPS Liv Tyler is opening up about the breakup of her marriage — a painful experience that she is still struggling to come to terms with, People.com reports.

"For the first time in my life, it's so much harder for me to get up and brush (off) my knees," the actress tells U.K.'s Harper's Bazaar in its October issue.

"I am feeling the pain and the loss of everything," she says about her split last spring with her husband, musician Royston Langdon.

Coming to terms with the end of her five-year marriage has not been easy for Tyler, despite her seemingly serene nature. "I don't feel calm and collected. I feel neurotic, like Woody Allen," says Tyler, 31. "I'm a Cancer and sometimes I just feel like a crab without a shell."

Tyler, who lives in New York City with the couple's three-year-old son Milo, has her own theory when it comes to healing.

"I am trying to just let myself feel it," she says. "I think you have to mourn and you have to feel that pain."

Naomi starts work at soup kitchen

SENTENCE Naomi Campbell began community service in a soup kitchen for an airport brawl, arriving 10 minutes late on her first day Tuesday, imdb.com reports.

The supermodel arrived at London's Whitechapel Mission centre in a chauffeur-driven limousine. But she was spared from the shelter's more difficult chores, such as cleaning, and was instead made to help with paperwork.

"It's usually pretty gruelling work but not for her. She was friendly enough and said hello but she didn't look too chuffed (excited)," a source tells Britain's Daily Mirror.

However, "Naomi is really eager to do the work that is required of her and give something back to the community," People.com reports a friend as saying.

Campbell was sentenced to 200 hours of community service after she admitted to spitting at police officers at London's Heathrow Airport in April.

HOW TO PLAY SUDOKU:

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.

SUDOKU SOLVE TIME:

Horoscopes

AVATAR VENUS

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 20

A romantic prospect appears on the scene. You're set to improve the quality of your life. A more positive attitude comes out of the blue.

TAURUS

APRIL 21-MAY 21

Someone you'll be glad to hear from will find you. Everyone is whining that they don't feel well. Whimpering will do no good.

GEMINI

MAY 22-JUNE 21

Neglect of safety precautions causes an accident. Carry a first-aid kit, just in case. Withdraw from a challenge at work.

CANCER

JUNE 22-JULY 22

A former enemy causes disruption of your work. Courage is needed to overcome obstacles. Don't be bullied by co-workers.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG 23

You can co-operate in a divisive presentation. A rift in a friendship can lead to the loss of opportunities. Be polite but stick to your own standards.

VIRGO

AUG 24-SEPT 22

You'll get confidential information. Expect a sudden series of surprising events. If friends advise caution, you must pay attention.

LIBRA

SEPT 23-OCT 23

Unexpected good news shatters your complacency. A contact leads to an improvement in your lifestyle. Try to take the afternoon off work.

SCORPIO

OCT 24-NOV 22

You may feel a bit under the weather. You are stressed by transit and environmental problems. Others feel intimidated by you today.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23-DEC 21

An admission of appreciation brightens the day. Friends are in an agreeable mood. A conversation will create comedy chaos.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22-JAN 20

An issue is resolved to everyone's satisfaction. You can count on people to be unusually co-operative. Take it easy for a few days.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21-FEB 18

Changes are coming at work. You're the best person for a job. Treat yourself to a fabulous fantasy adventure

PISCES

FEB 19-MAR 20

You'll ask for a little respect and consideration. You've exhausted yourself caring for others. Allowing resentment in would only do you harm.
